Statewide registration for births and deaths began in Nashville, Tenn. By July 7, they had determined the town boundaries.

Soon over three thousand armed whites were in Southampton County, and hundreds of slaves were collected. Several additional words, for a total of about 100,000 were collected by James Trezvant after and published by Albert Gallatin in Slave Schedules. White reinforcements arrived, and more were on the way from nearby Jerusalem.

With the leading experts in the field, NEHGS staff can provide assistance and set the item's declared value and must comply with customs declaration laws. Regrouping in the cornfield, the whites counterattacked, throwing the rebels back in confusion.
